August 12, 2024: Omnivore Recordings has announced a 20th anniversary reissue for Sam Phillips' A Boot And A Shoe out on September 20 on CD and, for the first-time ever, on vinyl. The release includes new liner notes from Sam as well as the tracks "Reflecting Light" and "If I Could Write," both featured on the fan-favorite Gilmore Girls.

Since the late 1980s Sam Phillips has been a poetic voice in the alternative/pop realm. She recorded a series of acclaimed albums for Virgin Records, including the Grammy-nominated Martinis And Bikinis (expanded and reissued by Omnivore Recordings in 2012), all produced by T Bone Burnett.

At the turn of the century, Sam was invited by Amy Sherman-Palladino, who was a fan of Sam's music, to score her new television series, Gilmore Girls, on a new network, The WB. Sam's unconventional score featuring vocal and acoustic guitar was likened to an onscreen character itself and dubbed "the La La's" by the growing legion of Gilmore Girls fans. Around that time Sam signed a new deal with Nonesuch Records and continued to build her stellar catalog.

In 2004, Phillips released A Boot And A Shoe, featuring guest artists including Burnett, Marc Ribot (Tom Waits, Elvis Costello), Mike Elizondo (Fiona Apple, Eminem), legendary drummer Jim Keltner, and the Section Quartet. The album contained 13 tracks including "Reflecting Light" and "If I Could Write"—both featured prominently in the Gilmore Girls original series and, most memorably, the Netflix revival Gilmore Girls: A Year In The Life.

2024 marks the 20th anniversary of A Boot And A Shoe and to commemorate the anniversary, it is being issued for the very first time on vinyl, and reissued on CD, both with new liner notes by Sam. On the occasion of its 20th anniversary, now is the time to reintroduce this incredible record, and on the format fans of Sam and Gilmore Girls have been waiting for.
